A Land of Edenic Simplicity-Gorge [Porto Rico Cur. Chicago later Cosas.]
The infant you see in the mother's arms, or in the little wooden cradle, is always naked, and the sight is so common that one soon becomes accustomed to it. As a mat-ter of curicsity some of the party inquired for baby clothes at a fashionable shop. The clerk smiled at their innocence, and ob-served that he did not believe such articles were purchasable in the city. The upper classes, of course, dress their children from infancy, but amon; the peasants they go unfettered by clothing until they have reached the age of 10 or 12 years. Then they take on garments gradually, the boys beginning with a pair of white cotton pantaloons, or drawers, with nothing above their waista, and the girls a white cotton tunic or chemise. which hangs loosely over their brown shoul-der-, and reaches to their ankles. The adults, among the peasants wear little more, the me : being shirtless, and the women being clad in a loose calico gown, of the Mother Hubbard cut. Neither ex thinks of wearing shoes or stockings, so toat the expendi-

Training for Girls London Truth.

William Senard Webb the journalist, married Lelia O good Vanderbilt the last remaining unmarried daughter of William H. Vanderbilt, the richest man in America. They know nothing—nothing about house. In these days every middle-class mother H. Vanderbilt, the richest man it America. It was a live match, too, and the young pair are as happy as turtle doves in each other's society. Webb was a young sprig and Vanderbit did not like him Figuratively speaking he kicked him out of the house ever all times, but in this in times love and others under government inspection; handed at kicks, and doubtless would have laughed at kicks, and doubtless would have but technical training of all kinds for girls lamphed at kicks, and doubties would have taken cuffs at the same time with perfect is quite left out. If a grid doesn't marry, he ought to be able to turn her hand to something.

The fact is, Mr. Vanderbilt forbade him the house, but the young girl was in love Our social feeling is quite fals, upon this partion; I do not think there are enough—in proportion to the dupes."

The Faction in Flowers.

[Interview with Pinsburg Florist.]

Just now the fashionable rage is for loose flowers, roses, caruntions, lities of the valley, byacinths. These are scattered promisers and have a most pleasing effect. The latest development in rose is the Bennett tea rose. If was rearred by an English horticulturist, and is the popular flowerin the east tow. This rose is of a deep crimtoh but, something a least the dangers, with the additional consolities and the business of the vanderbilt boot, to back in the light of his lady-love's eyes.

The old gentleman was unrelenting, and I verily believe there would have been an elopement but for the interference of Mrs. Vanderbilt She was the daughter of a clergyman, you know. She is good-hearted and seather may be an investment. The Marshal Niel rose is still a prime favorite; it sells for good cents. The pearl, a pretty yellow rose brings 15 cents, and the Duke of Consumplit, at the most not try to prevent the match. He rospects his wife, who is all that a help and residually the massive, and turn to in an emergency.
